Rich, Sabin, and the Carter Brown catalogue, following Gentleman's magazine, 1755, v. 25, p. 288, state that this work is principally taken from G. M. Butel-Dumont's Histoire et commerce des colonies angloises dans l'Amérique Septentrionale, 1755. The two are somewhat similar in plan, the French work having eight chapters, as Huske's was planned to have, but the headings of the chapters are entirely different, and though the same facts are sometimes made use of by the two writers, their points of view are directly opposed to each other. cf. Bancroft, v. 5, 1852, p. 170.

Hutterite brethren. Geschicht-buch der Hutterischen brüder ... 1923. (Card 2)

Noted by Josef Beck as "Hauptquelle" of the principal sources used by him in "Die geschichts-bücher der Wiedertäufer in Oesterreich-Ungarn ... 1526 bis 1785", Wien, 1883 (Fontes rerum austriacarum, 2ᵉ abtheil., XLIII bd.) now out of print (June 1925). The ms. itself (Gemeinde geschichtsbuch) is referred to by Beck in the above work as unfortunately lost, his most diligent efforts had been unavailing in discovering a trace of it (cf. p. XXXV, and p. 296 note 1: "Wahrscheinlich wird es von den anno 1762 und 1782/83 aus Ungarn nach Russland geflüchteten Wiedertäufern mitgenommen worden und nun in Taurien zu suchen sein"); the manuscript was brought from Russia to America in 1874.
